

THE SONIC CLASSROOM

'In the beginning was sound.' Daniel Barenboim

Sound is all around us. It is profoundly powerful in inspiring us in many ways. It energises us, relaxes us, makes us think and see into amazing worlds inside our own minds. It develops our imagination and shows us how we are all unique in the world.

Sound is a forgotten resource.

This course shows teachers how to use sound effectively to inspire creative writing and self expression. It looks at the different human responses to sound and how to use them. It looks at why sound effects us like it does.

You will then be taken through a wide range of practical applications of sound in the classroom. Developing characters from a sound, using melody with inanimate objects to create story, building sonic vocabulary, understanding sonic identity as a form of expression and much more.

The afternoon will allow teachers to build their own creative sessions using sound. It is a great way to build the team as well as discover the true power of this powerful resource. It will bring a new dimension to the teaching and learning of writing and self expression.

The day provides teachers with the understanding and resources to bring used and innovative techniques to their teaching.
