

THE DYNAMIC CLASSROOM

Learning is a dynamic process - full of energy and movement from one concept to another. Often this energy is lost in a weight and lethargy within the classroom. This course provides teachers with simple effective ways to build a more dynamic environment in the classroom. Some of today's educational practice is rooted in the 19th Century. This course will look at the classroom environment and effective instructional strategies, moving way beyond clapping hands and saying 'Shhhh.'

The day will show how building a more dynamic classroom increases immersion and engagement in all learning. It will show how to generate pace into literacy sessions that can so often drag, especially when dealing with reluctant writers. It will also look at creating stillness in the classroom and how this can lead to improved focus and concentration.

Ultimately this day will enliven, inspire and energise.

It is packed full of tried and tested practical ideas for you to build into your own practice injecting energy and motivation into the classroom and curriculum.
